MINUTE WITH THE MAYOR

What's the Warrnambool club or organisation with the largest membership?

I wouldn't mind betting it's the Warrnambool Library.

With 16,806 members it caters to a large chunk of our city's population and draws visitors from nearby towns and from around the region too.

Membership is up on 15,618 in 2017-2018 and 14,394 in 2016-2017.

The strong membership shows that it's a valuable community asset that is wanted, needed and very well used.

We also know that thriving libraries in the 21st century are different to those of decades and even centuries past.

A major project has begun to provide the Warrnambool community with a new library and learning hub. It's an exciting partnership between South West TAFE and the Council and it is going to provide our city with all that a traditional library offers along with more high-tech offerings and community spaces.

It's one of the measures that will also help us boost education attainment levels, which for Warrnambool and its region are down on the state average.

It's also an integral ingredient that makes Warrnambool Australia's most liveable city. This council values and encourages its community to be active in both mind and body, and a "state of the art" library and learning hub is a key community learning and innovation asset.

Last year councillors went on a road trip to look at the relatively new library in Mount Gambier. It was an eye-opener for me. There were hundreds of people in the library doing all kinds of activities with one common thread – they were all engaged in learning of some kind. Whether it was genealogical research, preschoolers listening to a story, someone borrowing a novel or gardening book – it was all about learning. Our currently library is loved and I'm very confident that the new library and learning hub will be a super addition to Warrnambool's cultural and learning landscape.

A library provides a city with balance. A city without a library is a closed book. Yes, you need to have business opportunities and sporting facilities but we also need to ensure we look after arts, culture and education.

This council is all about balance. A well balanced community with opportunities for mind and body is a happy community. These wonderful improved facilities in our community are why we are Australia's most liveable city.

MINUTE WITH THE YOUTH MAYOR

Over the past month, the Youth Council has been finalising our partnership with the Responsible Cafes Organisation.

The organisation makes it easy to find a sustainable café wherever you are.

We have completed a survey of local cafes to gauge the merit of the program and the response was overwhelmingly positive.

After meeting with Council's waste officer, I'm happy to announce that Warrnambool will be the newest Responsible Cafes partner.

Cutting out single-use coffee cups is something we can all do to help the environment and create a better world for everyone.

The Youth Council was proud to take a leading role in the W2040 campaign, and reducing waste is just one pledge you can make to help create the type of community we all want to live in. Visit www.w2040.com.au to learn how you can take action.

Responsible Cafes offers publicity and resources to recognise cafes that promote the use of reusable coffee cups.

Many of these resources double as fact-sheets and guides to promote cafe and customer sustainability.

Along with successful media campaigns, they aim to change the way we think about our morning coffees.

Their website contains a searchable map, which points out our local cafes already leading the way as registered responsible cafes.

The Youth Council will remain closely linked with this program and can't wait to see it grow. Please feel free to visit the website at www.responsiblecafes.org and encourage other cafes to join the cause!

A VERY LIEBIG CHRISTMAS

Christmas will come early to Warrnambool.

Following the popularity of last year's festive street party, A Very Liebig Christmas will return on Friday November 29.

Not only did the 2018 event attract a big crowd to the city's newly redeveloped main street, it was the third biggest trading day in Warrnambool that year.

When compared to the equivalent Friday of the previous year, spending in the city increased by $220,000, with 3200 additional transactions.

This year's family-friendly street festival will see even more businesses offering late night shopping for anyone looking to get their Christmas shopping done nice and early.

Adele Griffin is part of a group of local business people organising the event, and said that the 2019 edition of A Very Liebig Christmas will build on the success of the previous year.

"It will be a similar format to last year, but the event will extend all the way up Liebig Street to the highway," she said.

"There will be late night shopping as well as street trading – there will be special offers in every store.

Ms Griffin said that the event wouldn't be possible without the support of a range of businesses, as well as the Warrnambool City Council.

"The most pleasing part about this year's event was businesses, not just from Liebig Street but other areas, were happy to come on board as sponsors because they recognised how good of an event it was for the community," she said.

Warrnambool City Council Chief Executive Officer Peter Schneider said that collaboration between local traders, the community and council had led to a fantastic outcome.

"The attendance numbers and feedback from last year's event were all very positive, and everyone can look forward to another family-friendly street party to kick off the festive season on November 29," he said.

"The fact that A Very Liebig Christmas was one of the biggest trading days for the city in 2018 shows how it was enthusiastically embraced by businesses and the community."

For more information about A Very Liebig Christmas, visit www.cbdme.com.au.

LAST CHANCE TO BOOK SUSAN ALBERTI TICKETS

Don't miss your chance to hear from one of football's most influential figures.

Former Western Bulldogs vice-president and driving force behind the creation of the ALFW, Susan Alberti AC will speak in Warrnambool on November 21 as part of the Great South Coast Speaker Series.

To book, visit www.lighthouse theatre.com.au

The Great South Coast Speaker Series is a partnership between the Warrnambool City, Moyne and Corangamite Shire Councils made possible with funding from Small Business Victoria.

BUSINESS SUPPORT PROGRAM WINS NATIONAL AWARD

Warrnambool City Council's CBD Business Support Program has been recognised at the Economic Development Australia Awards for Excellence.

The Business Support Program, put in place while the city centre renewal was undertaken, won the marketing and promotion category.

The Business Support Program included a $1 million prize draw, the Find the Five promotion, business mentoring, A Very Liebig Christmas, AFL finals giveaways, Easter promotions, Beers & Ideas, free parking and more.

Information gathered during the promotions enabled Council to assess the impact they were having on people's decision to come to the city centre.

"As an example we learnt that the $1 million prize draw generated transactions valued at $2.4 million with the average spend per entrant of $145," Director City Growth Andrew Paton said.

"The participation of traders was a key to the success of the program; encouraging customers to enter promotions such as the Find the Five competition and the $1 million prize draw helped make the program effective.

"Major work was completed above and below ground that has improved accessibility and created a more welcoming and inviting space."

TULA THE MAREMMA RETIRES

After almost a decade of protecting penguins, Tula the maremma is retiring.

Tula, now 11, is no longer able to climb the stairs to access Middle Island.

Tula and her sister Eudy were the first maremma puppies trained specifically to protect penguins on Middle Island, and have stoically maintained their vigil for the past eight penguin breeding seasons.

Middle Island Maremma Penguin Project Coordinator Dr Patricia Corbett said that without Tula and Eudy, their probably wouldn't be a penguin colony on Middle Island.

"She's been training to protect Middle Island since she was a puppy," she said.

"She's an incredible dog. She has been the lead guardian for all of that time."

Dr Corbett said that Tula would still be active in her retirement.

"She'll still be helping us out at the farm where the maremmas rest protecting chickens," she said.

"She also does a fantastic job teaching the new pups, so she is still an asset to our team."

Founding member of the project, John Sutherland, recalled carrying Tula over to Middle Island in his arms when she was a puppy.

"She's a beautiful dog. She did a top job on the island and I'm very proud of her," he said.

"We've had film crews from nearly every country in the world come to see Eudy and Tula at work."

Eudy is expected to complete one more season on the island alongside new guardians Mezzo and Isola.

The Middle Island Project Working Group is grateful to both the Vet Group and PetStock Warrnambool which have kindly agreed to continue to sponsor Tula with her food and veterinary requirements.

NEW GUARDIAN PUP

Warrnambool has a new penguin protector in training.

The puppy was born in June, and has been training with existing guardian dogs since it was eight weeks old.

The new maremma puppy is the half-brother of current guardians Mezzo and Isola.

The public is invited to suggest a name via the Middle Island Maremma Penguin Project Facebook page.

Middle Island Maremma Penguin Project Coordinator Dr Patricia Corbett said that the puppy was already showing signs of becoming a great guardian dog.

"He is certainly the most confident pup we have had involved in the project so far," she said.

"He has been to Stingray Bay and Middle Island regularly and is beginning to recognise it as his territory.

"Another huge positive is that he is getting on really well with the other dogs.

"The puppy has the same mum as Mezzo and the same dad as Isola, so there's a bit of a family connection already forming, especially with Mezzo.

"The pair have bonded straight away. They're best friends."

Dr Corbett said that the new puppy, Mezzo and Isola would eventually become the project's three guardian dogs.

"With Tula's recent retirement and Eudy's last season coming up, this year marks a real changing of the guard," she said.

"Having three active guardian dogs instead of two means we can rotate the dogs more regularly and if one of them is injured or sick, we can give them a proper rest and still have two dogs on duty."

The best way to learn more about the project is to book a place on a Meet the Maremmas Experience, which has regular sessions running throughout the summer school holidays. All proceeds are used to support the Middle Island Maremma Penguin Project. Booking are now open.

THE ART OF INCLUSION

Warrnambool City Council and South West Disability Services (SWDS) are joining forces to raise awareness of disability through a colouring competition.

Artist Jaynee Turner worked with SWDS participants and South West TAFE students to depict an inclusive community.

The competition coincides with International Day of People with Disability on December 3.

The artwork will be sent out to local schools and will also be available at the Archie Graham Community Centre, AquaZone and the Warrnambool Stadium.

Entry to this competition is free and is open to everyone.

The entries will be judged by a panel of community members of all abilities, with creative entries encouraged.

You can return your coloured artwork to any South West TAFE campus or the Archie Graham Community Centre. Entries close on Friday November 29 with the winners to be announced on December 6.

BETTER BUDS

Beach Patrol 3280-3284 has launched the Better Buds campaign in an effort to reduce, and eventually eliminate, plastic-stemmed cotton bud use in Australia.

The launch coincides with No Waste November, a global movement that challenges people to reduce the amount of waste they produce, especially plastic.

Dedicated Beach Patrol volunteers have been collecting and cataloguing rubbish on along south-west beaches for two years, with plastic cotton bud stems among the most common finds.

More than 19,000 stems have been collected from Shelly Beach alone, which is located near a sewerage outfall.

The campaign will target individuals, manufacturers and government to try and bring about change.

Firstly, people will be encouraged to not only pledge to avoid using plastic-stemmed cotton buds, they'll be asked to pass the message on to their real-life buds.

Gardening Australia host Costa Georgiadis was the first person to take the Better Buds pledge at the Keep Victoria Beautiful Awards, one of three awards the group was nominated for in October. Cotton bud manufacturers and retailers will be lobbied to make cotton buds with organic stems more readily available, while upper levels of government will be urged to ban plastic-stemmed buds entirely.

Warrnambool City Council is proud to support the campaign, which aligns with its recently unveiled W2040 plan. The plan encourages encourage people to pledge to make small commitments in their everyday lives to create a better world by the year 2040.

One of the most popular pledges to date has been "I will say no to single use plastic – bags, straws, cups, bottles, cotton buds #plasticfree3280".

STUDENTS POUND THE PAVEMENT FOR WALK TO SCHOOL MONTH

More than 2000 primary school students made their own way to school as part of Walk to School Month.

Throughout October, children and their parents were encouraged to leave the car at home and either walk, ride or catch public transport to school.

Warrnambool City Council Travel Smart Officer Nicole Wood said that it was amazing that something as simple as walking could lead to so many benefits.

"Every two kilometres you walk rather than drive prevents 1kg of greenhouse gases entering the atmosphere," she said

"Walking is also hugely beneficial to physical and mental health.

"On top of this, the children we speak to say that they feel proud that their parents trust them to make their own way to school. They feel a sense of independence and achievement.

"I'm sure there will be plenty of students who carry on their good walking habits."

Walking to school dovetails with the W2040 pledge to walk or cycle for transport at least once a week #beActive3280.

To view the full list of pledges you take to help make Warrnambool a better place, visit www.w2040.com.au.

IT'S TIME TO MEET YOUR STREET

Did you see the Meet Your Street brochure in your letterbox?

The Meet Your Street brochure is full of tips on ways to be more neighbourly while keeping an eye out for your neighbours who might be vulnerable during emergencies, such as heatwaves.

In addition to asking people to have a look at the brochure we are also keen to hear stories of good neighbours and neighbourhoods.

Perhaps your neighbourhood has a Christmas street party, shares garden produce, looks out for elderly residents or even runs an air conditioner club on hot days.

We'd love to share your good examples on the Connect

Warrnambool Facebook Page or via an email to Nicole Wood nwood@warrnambool.vic.gov.au.

Connected neighbourhoods lead to strong communities, and you can pledge to "Introduce myself to any neighbours I don't know" as part to the W2040 campaign.

Learn more about small things you can do to make a big difference at www.w2040.com.au.

ANNUAL ROAD RESEALING PROGRAM STARTS THIS MONTH

Sections of 35 Warrnambool streets will be resealed to help prevent costly repairs down the track.

The $730,000 project will begin on November 18 and run until early December, taking in about 15km of streets.

Warrnambool Mayor Tony Herbert said that most Australian councils carried out annual resealing programs to maintain their valuable road networks.

“While most of the streets scheduled to be resurfaced seem to be in good condition at a glance, tell-tale signs of wear have begun to emerge in the form of thin cracks,” he said.

“These cracks allow water to seep into the lower, more expensive sections of the road base and eventually create potholes while shortening the effective lifespan of the road.

“By carrying out an annual resealing program, much of this costly damage can be prevented.

“The new seal also provides a more skid-resistant surface, resulting in safer roads.”

This is the fifth year that Council has entered into a partnership with the Corangamite Shire Council in calling for tenders to complete resealing works in both municipalities, a move which allows both councils to benefit from efficiencies due to economies of scale.

For a full list of roads to be resealed, visit www.warrnambool.vic.gov.au/road-reseal-program

MORE DISABLED PARKING FOR THE CITY CENTRE

Council is continuing its commitment to improve disabled parking.

Six new disabled car parking spaces have been created in the city centre. Two of the new spaces are in Koroit Street, two are in Timor Street and there is one new space Lava and Liebig streets.

Additionally, one existing space has been upgraded to make it compliant with the latest Australian best practice standards.

After conducting a review into disabled parking in the city, Council resolved in 2017 to allocate $30,000 annually to improving disabled parking.

Warrnambool Mayor Tony Herbert said that suitable disabled parking options were an important part of creating a 21st century city centre.

“The City Centre Renewal is about creating a city that is accessible for everyone,” he said.

“Pedestrian priority crossings, wider footpaths and the removal of curbs were obviously a big part of this, but ensuring we have adequate disabled parking is important too.

“By committing funding on an ongoing basis to creating new disabled parking spaces and improving existing ones, our city centre will become more accessible for people with a disability every year.”

UPGRADES FOR DAVIDSON OVAL

Warrnambool City Council has welcomed Victorian Government funding of $100,000 for an irrigation project at Davidson Oval.

Member for Western Victoria, Gayle Tierney said funding would deliver installation of automated sub-surface irrigation along with drainage work to improve the eastern area of the oval.

“This is great news for Warrnambool and I would like to thank Ms Tierney and the Victorian Government for supporting our sporting clubs,” Warrnambool Mayor Cr Tony Herbert said.

“We have seen a number of similar improvements at other sports grounds in recent years and this will further enhance the quality of our city’s sports facilities.

“It will only build on our status as Australia’s most liveable city.

Ms Tierney acknowledged Council’s contribution of $50,000 to the project.

“Sporting clubs are the heart and soul of Western Victoria and we’re proud to help out with funding for this important project,” Ms Tierney said.

CCTV AND MORE LIGHTING AT CANNON HILL

Warrnambool City Council has received a grant of $133,967 to install two CCTV cameras and additional lighting at Artillery Crescent/Cannon Hill.

The funding was announced by member for Western Victoria Gayle Tierney.

The CCTV cameras and lighting in Warrnambool’s War Memorial precinct aim to address vandalism and hoon behaviour and improve perceptions of safety.

“The Artillery Crescent project will combat unwanted and antisocial behaviour and give residents the confidence to engage and enjoy their community,” Ms Tierney said.

Warrnambool Mayor Cr Tony Herbert thanked the Victorian Government for the funding and said the project would be of great benefit to Warrnambool.

“Cannon Hill is a special place in Warrnambool, very popular with residents and visitors, and this project will enhance the amenity of the area and help create a safer environment for everyone.

“The project will build on the notion of people ‘feeling safe’ in their city which was one of the key measures in the study by global research company Ipsos which found that Warrnambool was the most liveable city in Australia.”

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT FROM THE PAST

How often do you get a present that only gets used on Christmas Day? A Flagstaff Hill membership can be enjoyed almost every day for a year.

If you are looking to get an early start on your Christmas shopping, have you thought about a Flagstaff Hill membership?

Family memberships are just $85 and include unlimited daytime entry to the village, including major events on New Year's Eve and Easter Sunday.

TWO NEW RACES TO JOIN MELBOURNE TO WARRNAMBOOL IN 2020

The iconic Melbourne to Warrnambool Cycling Classic will expand in 2020, with two new races added to the program.

While the feature race will be held on Saturday February 15, a 1.2km criterium will be staged the following day along Viaduct Road.

The new 75km Port Campbell to Warrnambool Handicap will offer everyday cyclists the chance to experience the atmosphere and prestige of the "Warryn" in a more achievable format. Competitors will cross the finish line on Raglan Parade a few hours before riders in the main race.

Warrnambool Mayor Tony Herbert said that he hoped many of the riders and their support crews would spend the night in Warrnambool to compete in the criterium.

"The organising committee has done a great job in making the offering of the Melbourne to Warrnambool, which is already huge, that little bit more diverse with these new races," he said.

"They have really taken the event by the horns and guided some significant transformations to make the Melbourne to Warrnambool better than ever.

"I would urge everyone in February to get on board and support it as much as they can."

Warrnambool Road Race Committee Chair Shane Wilson said that the new races would help take the event to new heights.

"It's fantastic to see the much loved "Warryn" become the crown jewel of an exciting weekend of cycling with the addition of these two new events – the Port Campbell to Warrnambool Handicap and the Warrnambool Criterium," he said.

"This will be a great weekend of cycling and a great weekend for Warrnambool". 2020 will see the 104th edition of Australia's oldest one-day cycling race.
